

Opportunity Finance Network and Goldman Sachs Select Participants for 10,000 Small Businesses CDFI Growth Collaborative

Launch of New, Three-Year Education Effort to Expand Small Business Lending Capacity of CDFIs

Philadelphia, PA, May 11, 2011—Opportunity Finance Network (OFN), the nation’s leading network of community development financial institutions (CDFIs), and The Goldman Sachs Group Inc.’s 10,000 Small Businesses Initiative announced the 21 participants of the 10,000 Small Businesses CDFI Growth Collaborative today. This distinguished group was selected from a pool of more than 50 applicants, and represents CDFI loan funds which vary in asset size and serve geographic markets across urban, rural, and Native communities in the U.S.

“CDFIs are an important vehicle through which the Goldman Sachs 10,000 Small Businesses initiative continues to spur and support lending to small businesses in underserved communities across the U.S.,” said Alicia Glen, Managing Director and head of the Urban Investment Group at Goldman Sachs. “Through a learning network of in-person peer exchanges and online education workshops, the CDFI Growth Collaborative will help CDFIs develop both the capacity and knowledge to grow their small business lending portfolio and stimulate the growth of more small businesses in their communities.”

The CDFI Growth Collaborative is a three-year program that will provide participating CDFIs with a unique, “tuition paid” learning program to help CDFI loan funds address the needs of small businesses in underserved communities across the country. Participants will strengthen their capacity to lend to small businesses through practical peer learning opportunities. The CDFI industry will benefit from new technical assistance and resources published as a result of the program.

“OFN congratulates the new cohort of 21 CDFI loan funds that have been selected to participate in the 10,000 Small Businesses CDFI Growth Collaborative. While the current outlook for small business financing remains challenging, we know that CDFI small business lending is vital to economic growth in distressed markets. This innovative, new program will certainly contribute to the body of small business financing knowledge for the industry, and we expect participants to incorporate new learning that will benefit the low-wealth and low-income communities they serve,” said Mark Pinsky, President and CEO of OFN.

The CDFI Growth Collaborative participants include:

- ACCION Texas-Louisiana, serving Louisiana and Texas
- Appalachian Community Enterprises d/b/a Access to Capital for Entrepreneurs (ACE), serving Georgia

Inna Kinney, participant of the CDFI Growth Collaborative and Founder and CEO at the Economic and Community Development Institute (ECDI) said, "Since 2008, ECDI has seen a spike in demand for larger loans. In response we have introduced new small business loan products and grown our loan portfolio. Working with the CDFI Growth Collaborative will allow us to learn from the experiences of other similar organizations and industry professionals, and will lead to more streamlined growth for ECDI. Ultimately, we hope to achieve greater community impact by funding and nurturing more profitable businesses, leading to greater job creation and higher salaries for the employees of the businesses we serve."

"Given the growth that HOPE anticipates in the coming years, we welcome the opportunity to access best-practice tools, policies, and procedures developed by partner CDFIs and OFN," said Bill Bynum, Chief Executive Officer at Hope/ECD. "The CDFI Growth Collaborative will help HOPE to identify potentially missed opportunities for loan products, lending efficiencies, and funding sources that will allow our CDFI to increase its production volume in a sustainable manner."

CDFI loan funds participating in this innovative new program will enjoy learning opportunities including:

- Information exchanges, meetings, online learning, and networking opportunities
- Opportunity to apply for one-on-one or small-group consulting services
- Focused training on topics of importance to the Collaborative
- Discussions/development of tools, policies, and best practices
- Opportunity to present on behalf of the Collaborative at the OFN Conference

CDFIs not participating in the Collaborative can also benefit from this program by: downloading new reports being published by OFN, such as the free, small business-focused technical assistance memo; attending small business sessions sponsored by Goldman Sachs at the annual OFN Conference; and by participating in small business-focused conference calls.
