Virginia-Based CDFI Providing Solution for Immigrants Seeking Citizenship

Freedom First Federal Credit Union Wins $100,000 Award to Launch Innovative Loan Product

(PHILADELPHIA, August 15, 2013)—Roanoke, VA-based Freedom First Federal Credit Union, has won the $100,000 NEXT Seed Capital Award from Opportunity Finance Network (OFN) to introduce the American Dreamer Loan product, which will provide Roanoke-based immigrants financing they need to apply for citizenship. This is the first loan program of its kind in the area.

Freedom First developed its American Dreamer Loan product to offer affordable, responsible financing to help local refugees, as well as immigrants who are legal permanent residents, apply for citizenship. The cost of naturalization services can range from approximately $2,500-$5,000, and many refugees and immigrants struggle to find financing to cover these high costs. In partnership with Commonwealth Catholic Charities and local law firms, the loan program will help approximately 30 refugees and immigrants complete the naturalization process and apply for citizenship in its first year. Refugee and immigrant groups living in the area with large populations include Somali Bantu, Vietnamese, Bosnians, Croatians, Cubans, and Iraqis.

Dave Prosser, VP of Community Development at Freedom First, explained that many applicants get stuck when they cannot afford the legal costs of applying. “In this country, immigration law is complex and many newcomers require personal guidance, along with legal and financial assistance, to successfully navigate the U.S. citizenship process. We recognized a need in our community to offer low-cost loans to help credit-challenged immigrants pay the costs associated with obtaining citizenship. Hence, our idea for the American Dreamer Loan was born.”

Freedom First Federal Credit Union is a nonprofit community development credit union that provides affordable, equitable financial and development services to its members. It is the largest certified community development financial institution (CDFI) in Virginia. Freedom First is committed to financial inclusion by providing members with the products, services, and education they need to achieve financial independence.

Mark Pinsky, President and CEO of Opportunity Finance Network and member of the NEXT Seed Capital Award selection committee, praised Freedom First’s creativity, “As the nation grapples with complex immigration challenges, Freedom First is leading the way with an innovative solution for the large and important immigrant market. This is another example of what CDFIs do best—fitting responsible and affordable financial products and services to the unique needs of the communities they serve.”

Each year through 2016, the no-strings attached $100,000 NEXT Seed Capital Award will go to one CDFI with a promising idea for expanding its products and services to serve more low-income people and communities. This award is made by OFN as part of the Wells Fargo NEXT Awards for Opportunity Finance. Wells Fargo provides the generous funding.

“There is significant need for this new product, which will help make citizenship accessible to more immigrants in Virginia, and could be replicated nationally,” said Lesley Eckstein, executive vice president and head of Community Lending and Investment at Wells Fargo. “We are proud to support the NEXT Awards, Freedom First Federal Credit Union, and its American Dreamer Loan product, which provides financing to low-income people and families who are on the path to citizenship and may not have access to the resources they need."

In addition to the loan component of the program, Freedom First will offer financial education to applicants to help them develop the skills to build assets while simultaneously working with qualified partners to achieve their goal of citizenship.
